Experience

William Audet is a student at Bereskin & Parr LLP. His practice focuses on trademarks, copyright, regulation and litigation.

In 2018, William graduated from the joint LL.B./J.D. program at the Université de Sherbrooke with a specialization in common law and transnational law. He is currently completing a Master of Laws (LL.M.). His thesis focuses on copyright protection of artificial intelligence systems and works generated by them.

During his academic career, William has held several positions as a research and teaching assistant in intellectual property law. During his studies, he was also involved as a volunteer with a number of organizations and founded a web-based self-help platform for the student community at the Université de Sherbrooke's Faculty of Law.

William authored the article Cinq décisions intéressantes en droit d'auteur en 2018, published in Les Cahiers de Propriété Intellectuelle (available in French only), and coauthored the article Le Canada a-t-il besoin de la First Sale Doctrine?, published in the Revue Francophone de la Propriété Intellectuelle (available in French only).
